The Greenback Printing Controversy

Dry Process Mandate to Counterfeiting?

C. F. Verbeke

CHANGEOVER to a different type of currency printing may well cause a mounting wave of counterfeiting, according to the Hon. Gonzalez of Texas.

The currency printing changeover is the latest in a series of "economy in government" moves perpetrated by an enlightened Washington bureaucracy.

The Representative of Texas proved remarkably well informed on the subject of precision currency printing as shown by his well documented presentation before the House earlier this month. The Hon. Gonzalez elaborated on the subject in the following terms:

"The counterfeiting of our currency has represented a threat to the national economy since the days when wampum was the coin of the realm. This threat has continued throughout our history and in recent years has tended to increase at an alarming rate. Now, with counterfeiting at an alltime high, the problem is likely to break out in epidemic proportions as a result of plans of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to change the method of printing the Federal Reserve notes and the U. S. notes to the inferior dry paper process.

Until fairly recently the Bureau of Engraving and Printing employed the wetpaper process of engraving exclusively in the production of our currency. This method, the wet-paper process, produced perhaps the most superior form of currency in the world. Let me explain briefly the major differences between the wet-paper process and the dry-paper process.

In the wet-paper process the engraver cuts into the steel engraved plates many variations such as deep cut lettering, shading, and delicate lines. When these are transformed into a printed impression they form the lifelike portrait and the distinctive characteristics of the currency. In order to achieve this result it is absolutely essential that graduated tones and delicate details, which give a third dimensional effect, may be expressed. These features are also extremely difficult, if not impossible, to photograph or reproduce by any other means. It is an indisputable fact that the wet-paper process is the best way to accomplish this purpose.

A little publicized but significant controversy is raging over the methods used in currency printing. The protagonists are Representative Henry Gonzalez (D-Texas) and Henry Holtzclaw, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. This institution bears the burden of issuing paper money and has accomplished this task with a certain elegance over the years.

Indeed, U. S. paper money has a solid reputation of discouraging counterfeiting because of its outstanding characteristics of quality and precision engraving. This fact is well recognized by engraving and counterfeiting experts here and abroad.

The wetting process softens the paper and allows it to be forced down into the engraved lines. It thereby absorbs all the ink from the engraved design with a minimum of pressure. This permits the fine lines, heavy lettering, and the delicate background to print in a clear and distinct manner. The impression produced cannot be duplicated by any other method.

Dry Process Increases Printing Speed

With the dry-paper process the paper, to no one's surprise, is left dry. This permits printing at a much greater rate of speed. But because the paper is not softened by wetting the surface remains hard and much more pressure must be used to transfer the ink onto the sheet. The combination of high speed and tremendous pressure requires alterations in the engravings. The alterations are in each instance at the expense of quality. The fine lines are coarsened and the depth of the lettering is made shallower. Due to the altered engraving, the speed of the press, the hard surface of the paper and the tremendous pressure required, the dry print makes a flat, lifeless impression which nullifies the protective artistic effect intended through the wet-paper process.

Why has the Bureau of Engraving and Printing abandoned the tried and tested wet-paper process for the inferior dry-paper process? For reasons of economy. I understand that it is the theory of the Bureau that it will be less costly to produce money with foreign rotary presses by the dry-paper process. Now, it may be true that we will be producing cheaper money in this manner, but will it be less expensive to the general public?

Counterfeiting is in an upward spiral. In the first 9 months of this fiscal year, according to unpublished Government statistics, 5.9 million in counterfeit notes were seized. In all of fiscal year 1963 only $3.4 million in counterfeit money turned up, and there was only $355,299 in all of 1954. Further, these figures represent bogus money we know about. They do not reflect the amount of production.

It is in light of these facts that the Bureau has exercised its discretion to change over to an inferior method of printing. The counterfeiter is bound to be encouraged by this development because he can now more nearly duplicate real money by the offset process. Printing establishments using the offset process can be found in every little village, town, and city in the United States. The offset process will be used by counterfeiters more extensively and with more success because offset printing plates can be easily made through the photographic process. And with the major strides in the graphic arts, with the new advanced automatic photographic and printing equipment, a fast-working counterfeiter will be able to make millions of dollars in a few days. He will no longer have to hand-engrave the plates necessary to duplicate the wet-paper process. This conclusion is fully supported in the views recently expressed by Mr. John H. Hanly, Secret Service special agent in charge of counterfeiting. Mr. Hanly stated:

Advances made by the graphic arts now make it possible for forgers to obtain ready-mixed chemicals and inks, presensitized plates, and high grade paper as easily as a housewife can purchase a loaf of bread.

Counterfeiting has always been one of the get-rich-quick projects to attract the criminal. It has even occurred to governments that massive forgeries could go a long way toward wrecking a rival economy. Nazi Germany used this device during World War II and produced an estimated $600 million worth of British bank notes. It was so successful that by 1943 the bank withdrew all existing paper money from circulation and issued a new series. But the cost to the British Government was in the millions and the fake money continued to be circulated and accepted.

Big Bills Ready for Circulation

So far, the Government has circulated only $1 bills printed by the inferior dry paper process.

Silver, Stepchild of Politics

An Evaluation of a Changing Market

(The following article is the work of Mr. Loyd L. Parker, one of the leading dealers in silver and gold coins in the United States. For years, Mr. Parker has prophesied the appreciation of gold and silver and advised the acquisition of these metals in coin form as a prime vehicle for safe investing. It is with pleasure that we reprint this article, which is a bulletin recently released to his many past customers, in full. Ed.)

SILVER, STEPCHILD OF POLITICS

SOME wise men say it is not possible for the price of silver to go up, for the U.S. Treasury has put a ceiling on silver at $1.293/-oz. fine, and has 1500 million ounces of silver to enforce this ceiling. Which is true; the Treasury now owns the world's greatest hoard of silver, to be used only for minting of minor silver coins (10c, 25c, 50c), and to be sold to silver buyers to enforce the ceiling price of $1.293 per fine ounce. This the price at which a silver dollar contains exactly a dollar's worth of silver it is also the price at which silver certificates (paper currency) can be redeemed at par in bullion silver at the Treasury.

Up Pops The Coin Hoarder

The minor silver coins would contain par value of silver if the price of silver rose to $1.38/oz. fine. So!—the Treasury must take every action possible to preclude a rise in the price of silver toward this $1.38 price. for if the price approached $1.38, then the Public would begin hoarding minor silver coins, aggravating the present coin scarcity (which is partly a result of silver coin hoarding already occurring). The public is highly responsive to rumor, fad, and fashion (and the madness of crowds) and could create a coin panic by suddenly hoarding dimes, quarters and halves. If coins were taken out of circulation, by hoarding, business would be in chaos. Imagine buying your groceries without coins; how would you make change? With postage stamps?

To preclude a further rise in the silver price, the Treasury must stabilize the New York silver market (and London silver market also, for one feeds the other). This is done by selling silver on the open market from the Treasury's 1500 million ounce hoard. Silver is sold regularly as required actually the Treasury does not sell silver, instead, buyers come to the Treasury to buy when they can buy cheaper from the Treasury, by trading in silver certificates for silver bullion at $1.293/oz. fine. This Treasury outflow is substantial. The question is how long will the 1500 million ounces last?

Is The Ceiling Puncture-Proof?

The gist of the silver problem is that world consumption of silver is running about 200 million ounces per year in excess of production. Further complications: in recent years consumption has increased while production has decreased. World production is in the order of 200 million ounces per year while consumption is about 400 million ounces per year. Simple solution: quit minting silver coins. But this won't work. Because, only about one-third of total world silver consumption goes into coinage, and about two-thirds total consumption goes into industrial requirements—these figures indicate that there would still be more silver used than produced, even if coinage of silver were entirely eliminated.

Industry is the big silver user, coinage is next; hoarding is still a third factor in the demand for silver that could soon dominate the market. Everyone knows that hoarding of gold is unlawful, but hoarding of silver is unrestricted (how could you stop it? Silver coins are everywhere.) It follows that if hoarders cannot get gold they may very well turn to silver, and this seems to be occurring. If the price of gold should increase beyond the present controlled $35/oz. price, then the price of silver would undoubtedly puncture the $1.293 ceiling price. History: in 1933, when gold price was marked up from $20.67 to $35, promptly thereafter the prices of silver, copper, lead, zinc, rose in proportion.

Silver is affected by dishoarding as well as by hoarding; when the price of silver goes up, many hoards of silver, often in the form of coins, are sold into the markets by individuals and governments.

This acts as a brake on the price, but further dishoarding is not now expected to deter a silver price rise, for all the known silver hoards of consequence are believed to have been liquidated. They have had time to dishoard; the price of silver has remained at $1.293 since September, 1963.

Since consumption is running 200 million ounces per year in excess of production, simple arithmetic would indicate that the 1500 million ounces in the Treasury hoard would last 7½ years. Some economists have estimated that the Treasury hoard would last only 4½ years because consumption increases while production decreases. Also, these estimates do not take into account the effect of hoarding. How long will the 1500 million ounces last? Quien Sabe (Who Knows)?

Clip The Coins?

A government beset by a silver shortage (or inflation) is often tempted to call in the silver coins in circulation, melt them down and remint new coins containing a lesser amount of silver per unit of currency. This solution has been resorted to by the Mexican Government in recent years on several occasions, and that is why my present stock of Mexican silver coins for sale contains three different 5-peso coins, each coin containing a different amount of silver. "Coin debasing" fails to get silver into the Treasury because the Contrary Citizens (Free Men) refuse to obey the government edict to turn in their silver coins for new ones.

Presently the U.S. Government has $1,900 million worth of minor silver coins in circulation. The Treasury's silver stock would be greatly enhanced if all these coins could be called in, reminted with only half as much silver in them as presently—but this is impossible and will not be done, because an edict from Washington demanding the turning in of coins would be ignored. What is worse, if the public were told of such a plan, or if a rumor spread to the effect that all new coins in the future were to be minted with a smaller silver content, then the existing $1,900 million worth of highsilver content coins would immediately go into hoard. Gresham's Law still works (bad money drives out good money). It is like the Law of Gravity: it was never passed by Congress nor reviewed by the Supreme Court, but it is obeyed. The people are Sovereign.

And when this comes to pass you will use postage stamps at the grocery store to make change, until the government mints new coins or prints factional currency (woe unto the bank tellers).

"Coin Investment: A Brief History"

By ROBERT OBOJSKI, Ph.D.

(Ed Note: This is the second half of an article begun last week).

In the course of this essay, we should not fail to mention that one of the most powerful banking families of all time laid its economic foundations through coin investment — the Rothschild family!

The fabulous House of Rothschild was founded by Meyer Anselm who was born in the Jewish ghetto of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Germany, in 1743. His father Anselm Moses Bauer was a fairly prosperous merchant. Young Meyer commenced his unique career as a merchant, but it was through his work as a coin dealer that he established his career.

Meyer dealt in all types of coins, from the ancient Greek, Roman, Byzantine and Oriental, to modern European, and in all metals from bronze to gold. As he prospered he moved to the ghetto's five-story "House with the Green Shield" (he had been born in the humbler "Red Shield House" that gave the family its name — Rot Schild). The real turning point in Meyer's career came when he ingratiated himself with Prince William of Hesse by selling him rare coins at a bargain. The prince reciprocated this favor by giving Meyer the job of investing his vast cash reserves.

Meyer was able to gain other large accounts through his shrewdness in both coin dealing and currency exchange. He rose from near poverty to affluence by gaining a reputation for honest dealing and high ability.

He fathered five sons (as well as five daughters) and sent his boys off to different points in Europe to establish branches of a burgeoning financial empire. By the time Meyer Rothschild died in 1812, his sons were firmly entrenched in the banking business at Frankfurt, under Anselm; London, Nathan; Vienna, Solomon; Paris, Jacob; and, Naples, under Karl Rothschild. Under their father's instructions they formed a general partnership, which controlled speedily the largest aggregate of capital known in ancient or modern times. Each of the sons had received the hereditary title usually accorded to landowners in Austria, and in 1822 they were created Barons.

The Rothschild rapid communications system was based upon fast horse-drawn coaches (closest thing they had to the teletype at the time!) and a Yiddish-German cipher to link the family diaspora. Meyer sent Prince William's Hessian talers to London, where Son Nathan's speculations multiplied them and won the family a small fortune and even a more prestigious reputation.

When the British asked Nathan to smuggle gold to General Wellington's troops trapped in Portugal during the Napoleonic wars, he shipped the gold straight to France, where Brother Jakob managed to get it through the Pyrenees. Further, Nathan found out about Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo before anyone else in Britain, thanks to a courier who rushed a Dutch newspaper to him. He used the news to make a killing on the London stock market.

(The aforementioned episode was researched by Kathleen Cooil of TIME magazine for TIME'S recent cover story on the House of Rothschild.)

The House of Rothschild still flourishes today under Guy de Rothschild who is the head of both the bank and the family. He operates out of his Paris headquarters.

The Rothschild family coin collection is a treasure trove in itself, a collection that has been built up over the generations — and they have never forgotten that numismatics was one of the major keys to their unparalleled success in high finance.

Thus, we have seen that coin investment has enjoyed a lengthy and colorful history. Because countless collectors and investors of centuries ago preserved choice specimens of classic numismatic specimens, we are now able to view them in every corner of the world — from Washington to New York, from London to Paris to Stockholm, and from Baghdad to Tokyo.

If someone didn't take the trouble to "put away" some of these coins, numismatic history would be literally filled with holes.

And in the year 2000, 2500, or even 3000 A.D., numismatists of the future will have access to choice specimens of 1964-D cents, 1964 Kennedy half-dollars, 1964 proof sets, et al, because collectors of our era are laying some of them aside.

THE QUIET LINCOLN

Ready For Another Rise In Price?

Soll Dennis

LINCOLN cents have been quiet for a long time. They have not stirred for eighteen long months—and this applies to circulated as well as uncirculated material.

After one of the lengthiest "levelling-off" periods in recent Numismatic history—a period which began in late 1962—this "standard" of the coin world appears poised for a belated upswing in prices. The key and semi-key dates, in particular, will find themselves doubling and tripling in value before the anticipated surge hits its peak.

It is safe to say that there will never be a better time than the immediate present for the addition of Lincoln cents, either by the piece or by the roll, to the investor's portfolio.

The last upswing in Lincoln cent prices reached its peak in December, 1962. When the smoke had cleared, the major Lincoln keys in fine condition were soaring at these new highs:

1909-S VDB-$150.00; 1909-S-$32.00; 1911-S-$13.00; 1914-D-$75.00; 1924-D-$19.00 and the 1931-S-$43.00

These prices represented net increases of up to one hundred and fifty per cent over the prices that were advertised in January of 1962—just eleven months earlier! At that time, the 1909-S VDB had a price tag of only $82.00; the 1909-S sold for $17.00; the 1911-S for $7.00; the 1914-D for $45.00; the 1924-D for $7.50 and the 1931-S, which had been completely overlooked by investors, went for a paltry $18.00 in fine condition.

That high-water mark reached by the Lincoln series in 1962 represented the last stand for the erstwhile "King of American Coins." Prices for the major keys remained stagnant for over a year, then began to slip somewhat. Only the 1909-S VDB showed any gain, and that was a scant five dollars. Typical of this sag in the Lincoln price structure, the "newly discovered" 1931-S fell off eight dollars in fine condition and can now be purchased for $35.00.

The rare 1914-D, much sought-after in the higher grades, has dropped off to a mere sixty dollars in fine from its 1962 high of seventy-five dollars; the 1924-D Lincoln is now only sixteen dollars in fine and the 1911-S can be purchased for just twelve dollars in the same condition.

The semi-key Lincoln cent group—those in the four to nine million mintage range—have also been all but forgotten in the current coin market. In fine condition, most of these dates have managed to hold their prices over the past eighteen months, although several have declined considerably in the circulated roll market.

It is in this area that today's coin investor can find the greatest potential overall margin for profit. Using the grading of fine for comparison purposes, today's prices for semi-key Lincoln cents pale besides the projected 1966 prices, the next price plateau for the Lincolns, according to market experts. Adding to the desirability of these coins as investment material is the fact that most of these projected prices will prove to be very conservative, indeed.

This group, with the current fine prices in parentheses, includes the 1910-S (five dollars), 1912-S (seven dollars), 1913-S (five dollars), 1914-S (seven dollars), 1915-S (six dollars), 1922-D (six dollars), 1923-S (three dollars), 1926-S (seven dollars) and the 1933-D (four dollars).

Projected 1966 prices for the same semi-key group indicate $14.00 for the 1910-S; sixteen dollars for the 1912-S; sixteen dollars for the 1913-S; twenty-five dollars for the 1914-S; fifteen dollars for the 1915-S; fifteen dollars for the 1922-D; twelve dollars for the 1923-S; twenty dollars for the 1926-S; twenty dollars for the 1931-D; eight dollars for the 1932-P and eighteen dollars for the 1933-D.

Higher grades and uncirculated price tags will rise accordingly, along with sets and roll prices.

Circulated Lincoln rolls, once considered a fertile field for knowledgeable investors, seem to have been completely forgotten by collectors and investors. Traffic in this area has been almost non-existent of late, except perhaps for some of the more recent dates in the late 1930's and early forties and the 1954 Philadelphia and 1955 San Francisco circulated rolls.

These rolls, generally in the fine to very fine category, provide an invaluable source for the prudent investor seeking a sure-fire long-term investment; an opportunity to acquire low-mintage dates in the Lincoln series at a price well below the tab for the same coin sold by the individual piece.

The 1910-S in fine, for example, is a five dollar item in the current market. A complete roll of fifty pieces in fine to very fine commands a price of just two hundred dollars, or fifty dollars less than the total for a like number of this particular date purchased individually. The same can be said for practically every date in the Lincoln series available in roll quantities.

Many of the key Lincolns in fine to very fine rolls have experienced severe price decreases during this lull in the once-powerful Lincoln market. The 1909-S and 1931-S rolls serve to illustrate this point: the 1909-S roll has dropped from its December, 1963 price of $1650.00 to $1495 at the present time; the 1931-S roll is exactly one hundred dollars lower today than its 1963 price of $1795.

Other dates which have declined in the circulated roll market include the 1910-S, 1914-S, 1915-S, 1923-S, 1927-S, 1931-D, 1932-P, 1932-D, 1933-D. The latter coin, incidentally, may be the "sleeper" roll of the group. With a low mintage of 6,200,000 and the history of a "depression coin" behind it, the 1933-D Lincoln cent can be added to the investment portfolio for only $175.00 to $190.00 per fine to very fine roll, or approximately three dollars and fifty cents per coin.

In uncirculated condition, the Lincoln series offers the investor the tremendous long-term prospects of the "new" Lincoln collection: the Memorial Cent, which begins with the 1959 issue. It also offers the explosive short-term bonanza from a small army of vastly under-priced older key and semi-key dates which are sure to make their presence felt in the forthcoming Lincoln boom.

Tomorrow's collectors and investors will look to the Memorial Lincolns as the older and more venerable dates dwindle into collections and investment portfolios. The uncirculated Memorial cent is the basic collector's coin of the future, and today's well-informed investor will bear that fact in mind as he ventures into the coin market.

This new series already has its "unique" dates: the 1960 small date Philadelphia and Denver cents. These "highlights" will lend an impetus to the newest Lincolns, just as the 1942 over 41 overdate sparks interest in the Mercury Dime series.

Several of the dates issued since 1959 will probably be much scarcer in uncirculated condition than most investors realize. The coin investment boom missed the first couple of years of the Memorial issue and a vast majority of these coins found their way into circulation. A check of the BU roll prices for this series to date will indicate a mere beginning for the price spiral coming in the months and years ahead. The so-called "ground floor" in Memorial Cents is here—right now!

The older Lincoln cents in uncirculated condition which rank among the most overlooked and underpriced key coins available today are spearheaded by the 1931-S and 1915 Philadelphia dates, as well as a bevy of the early San Francisco issues.

The 1931-S Lincoln cent is a fabulous investment in any grade; in uncirculated it offers unlimited potential.

Issued at the height of a dismal period in America's history, the 1931-S Lincoln is a bright light from a dark past. This "king of the Depression coins" has a tiny mintage of only 866,000—second only to the redoubtable 1909-S VDB among regular-issue Lincoln keys.

But that is where the similarity between the 1931-S and the other major Lincoln key dates ends.

Pricewise, the 1931-S is a laggard in the market—a sluggish tenth on the uncirculated Lincoln price list. At seventy-five dollars, it has a long way to go to even

You Can Buy Coins Now and Pay on Easy Monthly Terms

That's right, you can buy coins NOW, at today's prices, and pay for them over the months to come, as the coins INCREASE in value! Your dollar in your hand today can do the work of three.

Purchase numismatic items as you would (and do) buy automobiles, appliances or your home. But there's one big difference. Where as coins increase in value while you're paying for them, automobiles, appliances and your home becomes less valuable the older they grow. So smart collectors and investors finance the purchase of coins.

You will note your original investment was only $78.67. Your average investment over the 12 months was only $131.75 for a net profit of $285.60. The above investment required no research or special study selection. Well selected rolls and/or proof sets (Blue Chip and Sleepers) would have given better returns.

In June 1963, we recommended nickels, 1938-P, 1939-P, 1946-S, 1948-S, 1949-S for LONG TERM SPECULATION — at a cost of $324.40 which is worth $543.25 at June 28, 1964 prices for a net profit of $181.05 after a down payment of $108.13 and carrying charges of $37.80 — with lots of room for these to grow yet. Only one of these rolls would be removed from the list now as having reached its price objective.

You too, can do the same. Firm up your investment program now at today's prices. Time is in your favor if you act now. Submit your order today with cash equal to one-third (1/3) of your total purchase.

Cashdan's Coin Comments

Eliot J. Cashdan

SOMETHING we have been meaning to write about for a long time was just brought to mind last week, and as this was something that also affected us personally, we thought that we surely could give you first hand information. Many investors and collectors who spend quite a bit of money on their coins fail to take into consideration what would happen to their investment if the coins were lost, stolen, or damaged by fire or any other hazard.

Of course we assume that all collectors and investors exercise normal caution in storing of their coins, but how many take out full insurance coverage on their coins and if they do buy full insurance coverage on their coins how are they sure that the actual replacement value of the coins will be paid to them at the time of the loss.

Let us give you our own experiences in this line and also we will stop writing in the third person for a change. As most readers know, I am in the retail coin business, and also a collector and an investor. I started out as a collector-investor, and later started a mail order coin business out of my home. This got a little too big for me to handle, so I opened a store in Fort Worth and transferred all of my mail order business to the store.

I transferred quite a few of my coins to the store also, but kept my personal collection at home along with quite a few rolls of coins which I was holding for investment purposes. I had a coin floater insurance policy to protect the coins I had at home from the North River Insurance Company. When I opened a retail store I called my insurance agent and told him that I needed insurance at the store as well as at home. He placed the insurance on the store with the Niagara Fire Insurance Company. The insurance covered fire, theft, and the usual perils incidental to the coin business.

Everything was just fine until the month of August, 1962.

About a week before the ANA Convention we had an armed robbery at the store, and approximately $15,000.00 worth of coins at wholesale were stolen. We reported to the police immediately, and of course phoned our insurance agent too. He assured us that we had nothing to worry about, so I went home and went to sleep and didn't worry. A couple of days later an adjuster hired by the insurance company came out to the store and took a list of the coins that were stolen plus statements concerning the robbery. Let me explain a little further to give a little more background on the robbery.

I had brought an ammo can of coins from my home down to the store. The coin shop was and is a corporation, and I myself am of course an individual. I am president of the corporation, and as an individual I was selling some of my personal coins to the corporation. I had done this on numerous occasions when the store needed something that was in my personal collection. At any rate, part of the coins that were stolen in the robbery were the coins that I had just sold to the store.

Naturally when I delivered the coins to the store with an invoice, which I always did by the way, they were no longer my personal property, but rather the property of the corporation. Well, we waited for the Niagara Fire Insurance Company to pay our claim, and we waited, and we waited. We got on the back of our agent and he kept after them to pay us. Finally Niagara Fire Insurance Company advised us that in their opinion the coins still belonged to me personally and inasmuch as North River Insurance Company insured my personal collection, they were the ones who should pay me.

Well I felt that North River had nothing to do with it, but by this time I already had called in an attorney and he suggested that I place a claim with North River. Naturally I gave their adjuster the details of my transfer of coins to the store and they felt that they were not liable as the coins were no longer my personal property. The only course left open to me was to sue both insurance companies for the amount of the loss and let the courts decide who was to pay me.

All of this takes time, and it was several months before the case came up in court here in Fort Worth. It then took a couple of weeks for the judge to reach a decision. The judge decided that Niagara Fire Insurance Company was the one to pay the loss. This was almost a year after the loss had occurred, but we were to get 6% interest on the amount from the date of the loss. However Niagara Fire Insurance Company thought that the decision of the judge was wrong, and they appealed the verdict to the Court of Civil Appeals.

It was on May 15th, 1964, when the Appeals Court heard the case. About the 25th of June the Appeals Court handed down their decision which was to uphold the decision of the lower court. This didn't seem to be good enough for Niagara though, as they have now filed a brief with the State Supreme Court, and I am still waiting to have my claim settled. I have no idea how long it will take before the State Supreme Court can review the case, but I certainly do know that if I live long enough I will eventually get the claim settled.

I hope that I have not made anyone shed a tear with my tale of woe, but I have just mentioned the whole mess to show you what can happen even though you think you are insured and fully covered. A small dealer who suffered a loss like I did could be practically wiped out if he had to go through the courts to collect his claim.

All of this turmoil made me want to find out the whys and wherefores of insurance, and I studied the various phases of coin insurance quite a bit. I came up with some interesting pieces of information which I will try to pass on to you so that it may be of some help to you. First of all, most coin insurance policies have what they call a 'co-insurance' clause, and most of them are written at 100% co-insurance. This means that if for instance you have $10,000.00 worth of coins to have full coverage under the co-insurance clause you must carry $10,000.00 worth of insurance. If you only purchase $5,000.00 worth of coverage on the coins, the company considers you a co-insurer for the other $5,000.00 and in the event of a loss, will only pay 50% of the loss as you have only purchased the insurance on 50% of the value of your coins.

Another place where this co-insurance clause could cost you money in the event of a loss is when you have the same $10,000.00 worth of coins today as we mentioned above and cover them fully. That is fine if you have a loss today, but in a years time from now these same coins may be worth $12,000.00 or more. If you have a total loss at that time, you will of course receive the full amount of the policy, or $10,000.00, but if you have a $6,000.00 loss, you will only receive $5,000.00. Another thing you should check on your coin insurance is whether the policy states that it will pay the replacement value of the coins at the time of the loss or whether it will pay the cost price of the coins.

There are many policies being written on cost price which could prove disastrous to the person who bought 1950-D nickels five years ago for $100.00 per roll. We suggest that everyone who has coins should certainly have them insured unless they are in a bank vault.

We also suggest that everyone who has insurance on his coins check over his insurance policy to see exactly what his position is. We suggest that investors who are storing coins with dealers check on the type of coverage that is being given. It seems that most of us pay more attention to our auto insurance than we do to our coin insurance. Don't lock the barn after the horse has been stolen. Make sure that you have the protection you need now and that you are getting the protection that you are paying for.

There are more and more coin robberies taking place as the thieves have found that stolen coins are easier to dispose of than stolen jewelry.

They have also found out that many collectors are careless and that they leave coins of considerable value just hanging around the house in a closet or chest without any sort of physical protection. If you can afford coins, you can afford to have a steel cabinet or a safe to keep them in. There are several simple home alarm systems available on the market which will usually serve to frighten off the average coin thief. Just because you have insurance is no reason to be careless with your coins.

It is a funny thing, but a lot of people do not like to carry cash when they travel, they buy travelers checks, but some of these same people think nothing of putting several thousand dollars worth of coins in the trunk of their car and making a trip across country with them. This brings another thing to mind about insurance. Many policies do not provide coverage for your coins when left in an unattended automobile. There have been several large robberies lately from unattended autos, and it seems that the thieves know just the right time to take the car, coins and all. Most of these robberies have been from dealers on their way home from coin conventions who were tired, and just left the coins in the trunk for a few minutes while they got something to eat.

I hope that I have been able to help some of you, and if there are any questions that I may be able to answer, just drop me a line.

Bowers on World Coins

Q. David Bowers

COMING from relative obscurity several years ago Canadian prooflike sets have emerged as one of the most popular investment media today. A glance at advertisements shows that many of the dealers in modern United States proof sets also handle equivalent Canadian issues.

What are Canadian prooflike sets? Canadian prooflike sets are the Canadian equivalent of United States proof sets. They possess a full flawless mirrorlike proof surface and are proofs in every respect. However, the Canadian government has preferred to designate them with the term "prooflike", which has caused some confusion among American collectors who are accustomed to having the term "prooflike" apply to an exceptionally nice uncirculated coin. To avoid confusion many dealers depart from the standard "Canadian prooflike mint sets" and note them only as "Canadian proof sets."

In this study we will refer to these items as Canadian proof sets.

Canada has issued proof sets for the past 30 years. Proof sets of the late 1930's and 1940's are where you find them. The issuing numbers must have been very small . . . probably on the order of fewer than two dozen sets per year. These early sets, when found, are seen in velvet-lined red leather imprinted cases. The values of these early sets are speculative. In the past two years we have seen three 1948 Canadian proof sets. Although this is hardly a representative year as many of the coins are key items in their own right, the prices asked of $1,000.00, $1,500.00 and $3,000.00 respectively gives an idea of the lack of precise pricing information available. Collectors of Canadian proof sets usually initiate their holdings with 1954, the first year of which Canadian proof sets are generally available. The sets in the 1950's were issued mounted in cardboard strips surrounded by cellophane. Unfortunately, the proof coin handlers at the Royal Mint in Ottawa were not numismatically conscientious . . . and many of the coins were pushed in the openings by finger pressure, leaving tarnish marks in later years. Collector complaints against this practice were many and were aired frequently in various numismatic publications. It has been only in the past three years that the coins have been handled very carefully and are available free of tarnish. Currently Canadian proof sets are issued in sealed plastic envelopes similar to United States sets.

Without going into the merits of the practice, many collectors have removed their early sets from the mint-issued holders and have put them in plastic. This gives the set added protection and arrests the tarnish process. Judiciously cleaned, many of the coins have had the light fingerprint marks removed, thereby sparing them from the fate of what might develop into corrosion over a period of years. Collectors of United States proof sets have had much the same problem with early U. S. sets. Early sets

ATTENTION

INVESTORS AND COLLECTORS

The United States government has announced its intentions to discontinue production of Proof Sets. Where will all the funds that, up until this time, have gone for the purchase of U. S. Proof Sets, go? This money will go for the purchase of Canadian Proof-Like Sets and Proof-Like Dollars. Even prior to the announcement by the U. S. government, the Canadian mint was refusing orders for these sets and dollars due to the fact that their present facilities were operating at maximum capacity. Compare the low mintage of the Canadian mint to those of the U. S. mint. You will notice a drastic difference between mintages and current price ranges. Also you will note the improved quality in the coins during the last few years as compared with prior years. We invest and support the Canadian Proof Like Set and Proof Like Dollar because of: (1) The increased interest and price rise in these Canadian coins. (2) The announcement of no more U. S. Proof sets. (3) The low mintage-price relationship. (4) The improved quality of these coins. (5) The new design on the Canadian dollar creating a new series. (6) The forthcoming adoption of a new design in all denominations for 1965. We offer to you an opportunity with unlimited investment potential. Study the facts that we have mentioned. Compare our prices with those published by any other firm in any other publication. We will be glad to give you any additional information or prices that you may request. Please write or call.

PACE Coin Investment News

A Study of Cause and Effect in U.S. Coinage Policies

By Don Bale

NEWS that the Treasury has asked Congress to freeze 1964 dates on our coinage and that proof coin operations are scheduled to be stopped in December has prompted the following types of inquiries from our readers:

"I am a coin investor, as well as a collector, and I would like to know what will happen to coin collecting if the government keeps the same date on coins as they have been advised to do by a certain Senator. (Senator A. Willis Robertson introduced Senate Bill 2950 on June 25 giving the Treasury authorization to continue minting the 1964 date into next year.) With no new dates coming out, in your opinion, will it hurt coin collecting or will it arouse more interest because of the publicity?"

The above letter comes from Peter Sinicropi, 98 Bridge Street, Carthage, New York.

The news that the government plans to stop producing proof sets for awhile, of course, is the type of investment news that holders of 1964 proof sets like to hear. As was predictable, prices for the 1964 proof sets soared when the news was released. Investors figured it would be an excellent collector's item since it may be the last set made for several years and, of course, it may be the only set for some time that contains the desirable JFK proof half dollar.

As was predictable, interest in the entire proof series became more intense after news of the latest proof set development was released, just as the news of the new JFK half dollar created interest in the Ben Franklin half dollar series, and just as the possibility of a new Peace Type silver dollar, if and when it is issued in 1965, should create an interest in the entire Peace Type silver dollar series. Thus, clients who followed the advice of the investment news services, including my own COINfidential Report, to purchase most any dates of the proof sets made lucrative short-term gains.

If the government actually does discontinue all proof coin operations in December and converts the presses to producing coins for general circulation, how will this affect long-term gains on proof sets?

A recent survey by Dr. Robert Bilinski, a leading coin economist and author, shows that proof sets are the second most desirable item to collectors, surpassed only by Lincoln Head cents. And Dr. Bilinski's survey also points out that collectors intend to keep ex-were packaged in cellophane envelopes stapled together. The staples rusted and the staple holes admitted air . . . often staining the coins. Judicious cleaning has saved many of these also.

Before 1959 the market for Canadian proof sets was limited mainly to individual collectors who ordered sets in singles or small quantities. Few advertisements appeared offering these on a retail basis. Widespread interest in the United States for Canadian proof sets dates from about 1960. In that year we recall a number of investors became seriously interested in purchasing quantities. One New York City friend ordered 5,000 sets.

In 1961 interest became very intense. Mint orders continued to climb, and advertisements began to appear with frequency in various publications. By the end of 1962 many different dealers and investors had entered the game. 1961 proof sets were special favorites and the value reached $8.00. One investment group which had purchased approximately 2,000 1961 proof sets of slightly over $8.00 each told us a year or so later that he had been "promised" by the seller that the 1961 proof set would touch $25.00 in a matter of months after his purchase.

By mid-1963 prices of Canadian proof sets stabilized somewhat and leveled off in keeping with the true demand. Mint orders continued to climb even further.

During the past year prices have resumed their upward climb. The Canadian mint announced that it was adding new modern equipment to increase proof coin production, thereby displaying an act of interest in this profitable segment of their operations. Canadian proof sets have been added to the "portfolios" of hundreds, if not thousands, of investors. Dealer interest in Canadian proof sets has increased tremendously. Trading in Canadian proof sets is an active part of any teletype system today. With the expanded market for Canadian proof sets there is every indication that the demand will continue. Present Royal Mint estimates tell us that over 1,500,000 sets are expected to be coined in 1964.

We have not listed prices here as current values may be easily ascertained by reading dealers' advertisements in this or other publications. Investors are prone to comparing mintage figures and dates. Should any of our readers wish to compare the respective United States and Canadian figures one must remember that each Canadian set contained a prooflike dollar in addition to the five denominations which are in the United States set. Thus the face value of the Canadian set in Canadian funds is $1.91. The face value of a United States set is $1.00 less.

The risk involved in counterfeiting such small bills is usually considered too high. Consequently the results of the Bureau's radical changeover in process has not yet had an impact. But the inferior process has already been used to produce the higher denominations, the fives, tens, twenties, fifties and one hundreds, although these bills have not yet been placed in circulation.

When the bills in the higher denominations which have already been printed with the inferior dry paper process are placed in circulation, we may see and suffer from a tidal wave of counterfeiting which could very well inundate our entire economic system. I predict that within a short period from the time when the new Government notes are circulated the flood of counterfeit money will reach new heights, outstripping by far the previous rate of increase of this criminal activity."

The answer to Representative Gonzalez' allegation came quickly when Director Holtzclaw replied the new dry printing process "will result in an increase in quality and uniformity that will constitute a timely deterrent to counterfeiting", and added Holtzclaw: "in its continuing program of converting from the wet to the dry intaglio process of printing, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has made no compromise whatsoever with the quality or security features of printed currency."

The lines seem sharply drawn in this issue since both the legislative and Federal view are diametrically opposed and leave little room for compromise or academic considerations.

When in possession of Mr. Holtzclaw's reply, Mr. Gonzalez with his usual tenacity went again before the House of Representatives to stress the total inadequacy of the dry printing process in the output of U.S. paper currency. Mr. Gonzalez cited a multitude of reasons technically well documented in support of his pleas to maintain the wet printing process.

The reply of the Texas lawmaker sounds eminently convincing and is in direct conflict with the reply issued by a Government official.

Mr. Holtzclaw has however the advantage of being in a position which as usual defies outside control or comments; as such, official evasiveness may well get by once again.

The paradox of the controversy resides in the fact that were Mr. Gonzalez' claims justified, the issue would add insult to injury to an already confused Treasury issue.

Indeed where is the logic of replacing silver certificates with approach its illustrious relatives on Mount Olympus, such as the 1909-S VDB, 1914, 1923-S, and 1926-S. When it makes its move in the investment market, it may

Federal Reserve Notes which are virtually without metallis backing and expose the frail monetary edifice thus built to the threat of counterfeiting?

Switch To Dry Process Appears Inadvisable

The move could only result in further monetary chaos and dilute and weaken the position of the U. S. dollar here and abroad.

Mr. Gonzalez has brought the issue eloquently to the public when he urges: "I invite any person sincerely interested in preserving the integrity of our currency to obtain examples of $1 bills printed by both the wet and dry process, and to examine them and compare the areas I have indicated. Such a comparison will be answer enough to those who doubt that the difference in quality are real, significant, and easily seen."

In light of the seriousness of the controversy one cannot but concur with the Hon. Gonzalez' sober warning and conclusion: "I urge that the higher denominations not be placed in circulation until the questions I have raised can be fully explored."

well surpass most of the earlier keys on the list and take its rightful place at the top.

The 1915 Philadelphia Lincoln is considered an uncirculated specimen of great potential because all available evidence indicates it is just as rare in top condition as the 1914-D. Using this "actual scarceness" guide as a key to the relative value of the 1915 Lincoln, it rates much higher than the one hundred dollar price it currently commands.

It may be just as rare, actually, as the 1914-D in uncirculated condition—but there is a major difference between the two coins, a difference of primary importance to any investor: the 1914-D uncirculated is a six hundred dollar coin!

A point of interest for any coin investor to consider is the indisputable fact that the Lincoln cent—circulated or uncirculated—is still a very popular coin. It may be dormant in the investment market as a speculative item, but to the average coin collector—the person who places a high premium on a completed collection of coins—it is still America's number one coin.

A check of the auction sales at conventions and coin clubs will bear this out. The highlight of any sale is a major Lincoln key or a set of Lincolns. When this continuing demand makes its impact on the investment market, Lincoln prices will soar.

It could happen at any time.

About Gold

Unlike other metals, gold and silver are money metals, have been so for 5000 years of recorded history; they are associated in men's minds with money, they are highly suitable for money because they are valuable, scarce, acceptable, and easily minted into coins that are uniform in size and assay. They have proven to be a good and true store of value. It follows then that what effects gold will also effect silver to some degree, more or less, therefore a short resume of the U.S. gold situation is in order.

As of June, 1964, U. S. gold stocks were $15.461 billion of which approximately $12 billion are required for backing of Federal Reserve Notes, leaving $3.5 billion "free" gold. Against this $3.5 billion free gold, foreigners own short term claims in dollars, also notes payable in foreign currencies, also in the case of I.M.F., notes payable in gold, which total about $30 billion. The U.S. gold stocks are obviously very critical. Due to the kind tolerance of foreign central banks we have not suffered a "run on the dollar" (excepting Oct. 1960). These banks are not practicing pure altruism, they have selfish interest too in this, for they own many U.S. dollars and do not want to see their dollar holdings devalued; they also do not want to start a world money panic which would soon effect all paper currencies (and foreign aid). Set down in this paragraph are the reasons why many knowledgeable people think that a world money panic is inevitable, that a "gold run" is only awaiting some event to trigger the start. Silver: 1.5 Billion Ounces Could Be A Piddling Amount

The U.S. Treasury owns $15.4 billion in gold, but only 1.5 billion ounces of silver (value $1.95 billion). That is, the Treasury owns about 8 times as much gold as silver. It follows that $1 billion in silver bought from the Treasury (or the market) might embarrass the Treasury as much as the purchase of $8 billion in gold: the ratio is 8 to 1. This ratio is not necessarily so, for gold is THE International Monetary Unit, while silver is not, but it does indicate that if hoarding should get seriously under way in silver, that the Government could be quickly embarrassed, for money goes farther in the purchase of silver than gold. Compare this $1.95 billion worth of Treasury silver against $238 billion worth of money in the form of bank demand and time deposits or against $32 billion in paper currency. The ratio of paper and bank money to silver is very great: if only 1% of the public should decide to convert their paper and bank money into silver, all the Treasury silver would be gone.

World hoarders have been buying gold at the rate of approximately $1 billion per year. What if they should suddenly decide to buy silver instead? Americans may not legally buy gold bullion but they can buy silver. Some do.

Money and Politics Mix Badly

The U.S. Treasury has a gold problem, and they also have a silver problem. What is the evil that has brought on these crises? It is spending — spend, spend, elect and elect (the game goes on!) Where did this spending money come from? By the issue of government bonds, which are sold to the banking system to create checking accounts for the government. Checking accounts are money. In this country we do not inflate by printing money, we print bonds. Very sophisticated, we Americans! Now we are finding out that irredeemable money, money not redeemable in metal, always meets the same fate: it becomes worthless. Some citizens see the storm warnings and are trading paper dollars for metal.

Silver Price History

For about a year, during 1918, this Government set the price of silver at $1.01; after the war, government controls ceased and the price went up to a peak of $1.37 in 1919, followed by a sudden and steep price decline during 1919/1920 to 60c. Price held in the neighborhood of 60/70c until 1929; during 1929 broke to 25/30c as a result of heavy sales from the Indian Government. At the time the price of gold was increased from $20.67 to $35/oz., silver price was 27c (April, 1933), and after devaluation of the dollar, silver price rose rapidly to a peak of 80c, reached February, 1935. By the end of 1935 the price was back to 45c where it held and was sustained by Government buying until 1939; then Government buying price was reduced to $35c, 1939 to 1942; raised to 45c 1942 to 1945; raised to 71c through most of 1946, raised to 90 1/2c for a few months at the end of 1946 (price rise occurred after OPA ceilings were abolished) then quickly fell back to an average of about 73c until 1950. Thereafter the price remained at 85/90c level, and beginning 1955, a price ceiling of 91c was imposed by selling of silver from U.S. Treasury. This 91c ceiling price was maintained by the Treasury until the end of 1961, when the Treasury was forced to quit selling silver for the simple reason that the Treasury had no more "free silver" to sell. Silver price then quickly rose to $1.293, the price at which silver certificates (paper money) could be exchanged (by law) at par for silver. In June, 1963, Congress demonetized silver, that is gold was substituted for silver as the metal backing of all the silver $1, $2, $5, and $10 certificates in circulation, thus freeing 1654 million ounces of silver for sale or minting. It is presumed the price will remain at $1.293 until all this silver is dissipated, or there is a turn of the political worm.

Silver Production

About two-thirds of world silver is produced as a by-product in the mining of copper, zinc, lead, nickel and gold; only about one-third of silver is mined as silver. In the U.S. only one major mine is in operation that produces silver as the principal product. Therefore price increases have not increased production. During the depression, silver brought 27/40c, it now brings 129.3c, a 350% price increase, but during this time the cost of labor and mining materials has suffered a 350% increase, thus it is still uneconomic to operate marginal silver mines. Our labor controlled government has allowed labor to price itself out of the silver mines, and out of a great many other inpanding their proof set collections.

Even if the government does not make proof sets for several years, there is a chance that collectors eventually may lose interest in this series. This, coupled with the fact that many investors may soon feel that the proof market has peaked and thus decide to take their profits, may cause the proof set market to decline.

Roy G. Lawrence, editor of the COIN COLLECTOR, made the following comments about proof sets on the front page of his June 20, 1964 issue:

"... Now lads buy about 3,900,000 sets a year. Some say there are 8,000,000 collectors based a wee bit on the number of coin albums sold. However, every collector in the country has from 50 to 500 proof sets stashed away, and every dealer a few 100 or 1000 coin albums on his shelves, and the Collector's Club and ANA have about 28,000 members.

"I have the slight feeling, every one who is holding a bag, a roll, or 100 proof sets may some day decided to sell, and I don't know who is going to buy. Sell when you have a profit. And I think the time to sell is NOW!"

Mr. Lawrence's comments are worth pondering. However, it is interesting to note that those following his advice, "missed the boat" when the market jumped about a week later. Also, we know several dealers who have no proof sets in their inventory since the demand has been so heavy.

What if the government does not produce proof sets for many years to come? This is highly unlikely unless the government's current proposals to alleviate the coin shortage prove to be ridiculous and more effective steps are not taken.

If this possibility becomes a reality, numismatists will become interested in proof sets again, just as they did when the government resumed proof set operations after suspending production during World War I in 1916 and during World War II in 1942.

Numismatists thus will still be interested in collecting what then will be considered the "early-date" years of 1950 through 1964 plus the earlier sets, just as many collectors today are interested in collecting the 1936 through 1942 sets and even sets dating as far back as 1858 and earlier. (Proof coins have been sold to collectors at the Philadelphia Mint since 1858, except in the 1917 to 1935 and 1943 to 1949 periods. Limited issues of proofs were struck prior to 1858 but were presented only to dignitaries. Production records of proof coins were not kept prior to 1865.) Because of the sustaining interest in proof sets, it is apparent then that investors who invest or hold their proof sets for the long-term pull, cannot go too far wrong, despite periodical suspensions of proof set production.

Why has the government apparently decided to suspend proof set operations? An imaginative cynic might conclude that a group of investors with large holdings of 1964 proof sets subtly prompted government officials to take this latest step, knowing they could take some lucrative profits when the announcement of the proof set suspension was made. But we prefer to think that our government officials are not gullible enough to become a tool of coin investment syndicates. However, Bobby Baker and others are historical proof that government officials can be manipulated and prompted to manipulate—not always because they are gullible, but because the pay-off makes it worthwhile.

But in this case, investment pools holding 1964 proof sets would not have to go to such great lengths to promote their wares. If they knew their coin history, they could have logically figured that if the coin shortage became severe enough, mint authorities would be compelled to halt further striking of proofs because of the need of personnel and equipment for regular coinage needs, as was the case during the proof set suspensions during World Wars I and II.

Some of the paranoic curbstone coin philosophers may interpret the proposed proof set suspension as the government's way of "getting even" with numismatists for hoarding most of its money. If such were the case, the government might be justified in its thinking, for only the most pious numismatists will not admit that they have helped contribute to the nation's coin shortage. True, millions of vending machines across the country have also helped contribute to the nation's coin shortage (in addition to the increase in the nation's economy), but the vendor's "take" usually is returned to the banks, except for the few who resell their coins to numismatists. The numismatists' holdings, however, are carted away from banks and other sources of supply in station wagons and dump trucks to be buried underground or stored in vaults and warehouses until the proper market (or a severe economic crisis) warrants their release. And, of course, many members of the American Bankers Association, a group that is exerting all this pressure for "coin reform," piously stash away rolls of coins; hoard zinc-steel cents and other "scarce" material; make under-the-counter coin deals with numismatists, and hold back rolls of JFK halves while limiting their customers to two or four singles each.

There are many who do not think that numismatists and bankers should be blamed for the coin shortage. In an editorial, "We're all Rich!?" in a recent issue of COINswapper, A. B. Margolis expressed the following thoughts:

"Gee, I'm glad I am a member of a hobby whose ranks include some of the wealthiest people in the country. According to what I hear, at least 80% of the coin collectors and investors and hoarders in the country today are so rich that they can have a profound influence on the economy of the nation!"

"I got a copy of the new Annual Report of the Director of the Mint for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962. The figures published were quite a revealing surprise to me. It seems that the Philadelphia Mint alone is responsible for $1,097,178,896.60 worth of halves, quarters and dimes since 1945. I'm not even counting the coins in circulation today dated before 1945. We can add $362,242,462.18 in nickels and cents since 1947.

"The Denver Mint since 1946 put out $795,682,114.00 in all denominations. San Francisco put out $314,471,156.94 from 1931 to 1955 of all kinds. That makes a total of $2,569,574,619.72 coins minted in recent years up to 1961.

"According to that exhibit at the New York World's Fair we have almost 200,000,000 people in the country today. That roughly adds up to about $12.00 in coin per person the way I figure it. If we add a few dollars per person to dustries too, a basic cause of the out-flow of gold and silver from the U. S.

Silver Consumption

Once upon a time silver was used principally for coins, tableware and jewelry. Today the major uses of silver is in industry — photography, batteries, bearings, catalysts, chemicals, solders, plating. Space age technology requires metals having extraordinary qualities, which silver does have, and the metal that meets the requirements is used regardless of cost. For silver it is the dawn of a new era.

Silver Bullion

It is difficult for a citizen to buy silver bullion from the big silver dealers. Their minimum sales are $25,000. They do not cater to the public. Their reasons are surely good, they have been in the business a long time. They must keep on good terms with the Treasury Department, they must keep on good terms with their main customers who are the Eastern Fabricators of silver—who do not want to see the price of silver sky-rocket, as it would, if the public suddenly decided to buy and hoard silver bullion. (Witness the stampede to buy silver dollars that occurred in May, 1964!) There are many problems involved in selling standard silver bars of 1100 ounces troy (about 75 pounds) to the public. If Mr. Citizen bought a $1400 bar of silver, 999.5 fine, held it for a year, he might have difficulty in reselling the bar. The dealer that sold him the bar (or any dealer) would be happy to repurchase the bar at the quoted NY price, less a refining charge of about $50.00 (4.5c per oz.) And why a refining charge? The bar is or was pure silver and so marked. But the Dealer does not know the bar is pure silver, even though it is stamped with a weight and an assay, it is possible for the bar to be partly hollowed out and filled with lead. This Citizen is a total stranger to the Dealer, and to all the Silver Trade. He is to be dealt with at arms length.

Mexican Silver Coins

Silver coins are a form of silver that the public can buy at reasonable price, in quantities to suit any buyer, and what is most important, coins come in a form where counterfeiting or adulteration is most difficult to accomplish, and if done is easily spotted. Coins are manufactured into small uniform sizes with each piece certified as to assay and weight by a responsible melter (a government mint). For centuries, coins have been the safe store of value for citizens, rich and poor alike.

Mexican silver coins are a great bargain, cheaper in respect to silver content than any other coin presently available. And when you want to sell these coins, there is a ready market—I or any other coin dealer will rebuy these coins, or you can sell them to a silver melter at $1.293 /oz. fine (or whatever is the going price of silver when you are ready to sell), less a refining charge, which is about 4.5c per ounce of incoming metal. Some day these coins might even become acceptable tender in trade in the U. S. Once they were: remember that Mexican silver dollars (8 reales or pieces of eight) were the most acceptable form of legal tender in most of the U. S. up until just a few years before the Civil War.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis. The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

July 15, 1964

By Russell Brown

HAVING noted the extremely heavy volume making itself felt during the early part of the week, we were certain there would be numerous price changes of some magnitude. We were therefore somewhat amazed to see the small number of price changes which were recorded. And most of the changes were very small. It appears that any downward trend has run its course and the general feel of the market is one of leveling.

Lincoln cents presented a broad front of declines and few advances but the major victim was the 1960-P small date roll with a loss of only five dollars.

Only the 1949-S was able to gain more than a dollar in light trading. The Denver small date roll was steady in light trading.

Jefferson nickels like most other denominations, were traded sporadically by issue rather than by series. The 1950-D, 1951-S and 1955-P were among the volume leaders. The 1955-P regained the ground lost last week while the 1950-D was unchanged in price. The Jefferson average advanced due to the gains of the 1955-P along with the 1938-D and S rolls.

The 1955 issues of Roosevelt dimes saw heavy activity but surprisingly enough none of the three issues changed in value from the levels of the preceding week. As a matter of fact, only four issues in the entire series saw price changes the largest of which was a five dollar decline by the 1949-S. The average increased slightly due to an increase by the 1948-S.

Washington quarters were mixed and saw the smallest volume of all denominations. Only the 1946-S saw a major gain. Six other issues changed slightly in value. The 1947-D continued its slow and steady advance.

Franklin half dollars once again declined on average with six losses against only one minor advance. However, the losses were of a minor nature with the bid big loser being the key 1949-S. Finally breaking through a $123 support level and scoring a three dollar loss was the 1955-P roll.

Morgan dollars looked a little better than last week on the basis of advances and declines but were somewhat lower on average. Many issues which were not traded were probably lower but the declines will not be evidenced until active trading resumes. While the 1892-CC and 1921-D issues were gaining $20 or more apiece, the 1885-S, 1883-CC and the 1881-CC were losing $15 per roll or more. One of the Morgan rolls that may have escaped notice in the past weeks is the 1921-D. This roll was bid at $65 one month ago. Now it is bid at $130, a doubling of value in thirty days. This is a good example to quote your friends who say that all of the big gains in coins were made in 1963 and that there are no more good deals left. Its just a matter of spotting them.

Peace dollars are back to their old habit of complete inactivity. Only the 1925-S showed a price change during the week.

Proof sets apparently reached the top of their price rise toward the end of last week. On Monday of this week a general decrease of ask prices on all current dates was noted. Soon after, the bid prices began to drop. While most of the decreases were small, the fact remains that the proof set run is over after only two weeks and we will probably have a plateau situation until another wave of interest or good news hits the market. Only the 1952 set seems immune to decline with that date scoring a four dollar increase.

The circulated market had not only few if any price changes but also no volume. Only 1955-P circulated half dollars changed price of all circulated coinage covered.

It appears that many investors are turning to the Canadian proof like sets as an investment vehicle now that U. S. sets are a thing of the past. Prices on the 1962, 1963 and 1964 sets all made good gains.

With the coming of fall we are going to have two influences affecting the coin market which have not been present in past years. Both will affect the money available for coin investment. Since there will be no U.S. proof sets in 1965, it is assumed that seven to eight million dollars will be pumped into numismatic investments of other sorts. And since by the fall, many will be getting disillusioned with their bulk silver dollar investments, those liquidation proceeds will also be flowing into other categories of numismatics.

Just imagine the impact on the Canadian market if only a small portion of the U. S. proof set orders flood goes into Canadian proof like sets. It is apparent that many sharp investors are getting ready for this switch by acquiring the current date and past date sets so that they will be able to offer sets of earlier times to go with the 1965 mint ordered sets.

THE MARKET OPINION

We have long felt that Canada is in the same market position now that U. S. numismatics occupied in the early months of 1963. Not only are many Canadians becoming collectors but also many U. S. citizens are removing a large portion of Canadian coinage for investment purposes. This can, in the future, have only one effect on the Canadian market: it must go up if numismatics in general continues to be a popular hobby and medium of investment.

Coin Market Fundamentals

Coins are listed by date and mint. Mintmarks follow the date in the list and are the same letter that appear on coins.

Unless indicated as "sets" or "circulated" all items listed on these pages are for Brilliant Uncirculated coins in standard count rolls.

Standard count rolls are as follows for each denomination:

Denomination	Number	Face Value
Cents	50	$.50
Nickels	40	2.00

Dimes	50	5.00
Quarters	40	10.00
Half dollars	20	10.00
Silver dollars	20	20.00

Prices listed here are taken from the American Numismatics Exchange transactions and are dealer-to-dealer prices; in effect wholesale prices.

You could expect to sell at these prices, but to buy at retail, you should expect to pay slightly above these prices.

The "LD" and "SD" are varieties of the 1960 cent which were struck with large date and small date figures.

PROOF SETS

All proof sets from 1950 to date, excluding the 1960 small date set, go to make up the proof set averages. The current year's set is added to the average on April first.

American Numismatics Exchange Transactions

BU Roll Prices as of Wednesday, July 15, 1964

These bid and asked prices, from the American Numismatic Exchange Inc., do not necessarily represent actual transactions. They are a guide to the range within which these coins could have been sold (indicated by the "bid") or bought (indicated by the "asked") at the time of compilation. Price changes are obtained by comparison of weekly bid prices.

* Prices are wholesale quotations compiled from the American Numismatic Exchange teletype system which serves 195 coin dealers across the country.

1960/60 NICKELS—ANOTHER 1955/55????

1960/60 Nickels with nice and distinct doubled date, doubled dome, doubled lettering, doubled profile, doubled Monticello, extra step, connected letters, whiskers, etc., etc. These coins are scarce and in demand. We have sold quite a number of these coins to investors, dealers, traders, and collectors (mostly non-error collectors), with a good number of re-orders, and less than 1% returns. Many of our customers have resold their coins at from $5.00 to $20.00 each. All coins are carefully re-checked before shipped out and all coins are considerably better than the 1962/62's and 1960/60's previously offered. Remember the 1955/5 went for 50c before it became popular—now look at it, a $300.00 coin. We urge you to consider this coin for your investment portfolio in a market of unpredictable ups and downs, or for your stock. These coins are currently going for from $5.00 to $10.00 each, and around $130.00 per roll. We still offer them at our old price, but do not know how long we will be able to sell them at this price—so order early.

BU — $2.95 $47.50 per roll

1955/5 CENTS"POORMAN'S DOUBLE DIE"

Last five shifted. Being sought after by many collectors to use in the 1955/55 slot, therefore a great investment.

BU—$1.95 ea. $47.50 per roll

Our list of error singles and bargain rolls, also listing many closeout items, is yours for a stamped large size envelope.

Coinage

allow for the coinage between the middle 1920's and 1945 that weren't added up conveniently by the report, we would come up with about $15.00 per person.

"I have checked with a few bank officials in New York and they seem to feel that if there were enough coins made to allow $15.00 per person in circulation today and if that figure were reduced to around $10.00 per person there would be an acute coin shortage felt. We have such a shortage today. Where is the remaining $5.00 per person? That adds up to about one billion dollars in coin.

"According to Congressmen, newspapers, financial wizards and others, 'the Coin Collectors' and their hoarding tactics are responsible for the coin shortage today. That means that approximately 10 million so-called collectors in the country, by current estimate, hold this money. That comes to about $1000.00 face value per so-called collector. If this is true, golly, but we have a wealthy group. I wish I knew the ones who were holding the $1000 each in coin. I'd like to mingle with them.

"Now there are scoffers who say that there are not 10 million collectors today, but about 500,000 true dyed in the wool 'one of a kind collector' and the rest are the investors, hoarders, and speculators. Out of that group you must also remove the average youngsters who will build his small set out of allowance money. Will you allow me a total of about 8 million of the investor, hoarder and speculator crowd? If so that means about $1200 per 'IHS'. I must be really thick but in my experience with hundreds of folks in this hobby, I have yet to come across more than a dozen or so who can afford to save and store $1200 in coin. Oh, yes, remember I never added or considered the Silver Dollar. That is another story and wasn't included here to befuddle the issue.

"So, WHO HAS ALL THE MONEY? Why don't some of us who are real collectors know of the existence of these hoards which apparently are quite prolific to hear tell.

"Sudden thought. Could all the prophets, Congressmen, newsmen and the like be all wet? You mean, we don't have the money? WHO DOES . . . ?"

At any rate, a more realistic evaluation of the situation leads us to conclude that the government is not trying to "get even" with the coin fraternity by depriving them of their proof sets. The government has a problem on their hands that they must resolve, regardless of who created the problem—short-sighted government officials, numismatists, bankers, vending machines, the natural growth of our economy, or coin journalists and authors who have been informing the public about the golden opportunity coin collecting and investments. (Most coin writers, however, urge only reasonable investing in limited amounts of coins. Greed and/or boredom prompts investment groups to store bags and gross lots of coins in warehouses and bank vaults.)

While tackling the problem, government officials cannot concern themselves with such arguments that by freezing the date 1964 on our future coinage until the coin problem is resolved means that "our old tradition of date coinage will be destroyed." After all, there would be no progress if this country's foresighted planners and problem-solvers were bogged down by tradition.

But one can argue that since coin collecting is a hobby steeped in history, the powers-that-be should consider the historical factor before deciding to freeze the 1964 date. Unfortunately, the primary purpose of our monetary system is to fulfill the needs of commerce and not the voracious appetites of some coin hoarders. However, it would seem that the government could get the Mints' machinery geared so they could profitably do both.

It would be to the credit of our government if they could find a more desirable and, perhaps, a more realistic solution to the problem. For Treasury officials may find that their latest "fool-proof" panacea for the nation's coin ills may backfire. The more voracious members of the numismatic fraternity, as well as the general public, may decide to hoard all of the coins with dates and mintmarks prior to 1964, as the prospect of no date change for some time to come would make all the earlier dates quite a novelty.

And, while they are at it, they may just decide to gobble up all of the 1964 coins so they can reinforce with "living proof" their tales about that momentous year when the Great White Father decided that future coinage should bear only 1964 dates.

The paranoid element of the numismatic fraternity may also take it upon themselves "to get even with the government for taking their proof sets away" by gobbling up all the coins they can, thus starting an historical tug-of-war to see who can outlast whom. Historical cycles show that this country is about due for another civil clash, so, possibly, all freedom-loving Americans will chose to relieve their racial, economic, and nervous tensions by jumping into the "coin rumble." Meanwhile, the Mints may make so much money from producing all this fodder for this national donnybrook, that a good portion of the national debt may be eliminated. It is interesting to note, however, that the government is willing to scrap its profitable proof set operations in order to provide for "the general welfare of the country," which, of course, supposedly is the prime function of our government.

A cynic might add that the government expects to make just as much money from its expanded coin operations as it did from the proof set operation. This could conceivably happen, but it would seem on the surface, anyway, that the government is far more concerned with solving a national coin crisis and that the profit motive is a secondary consideration. Thus, unless government officials or someone in the numismatic fraternity or some other camp can come up with a better solution, it seems that numismatists will have to sacrifice temporarily, proof sets and updated coins in the interests of "the general welfare of our country."

Then there are the unpredictable factors. Possibly, these latest governmental proposals to solve the coin shortage are actually idle threats to scare the coin hoarders into sheepishly returning their holdings to the banks. For, after all, our government is mostly made up of bureaucrats and politicians who are skilled at and noted for doing the opposite or something entirely different from what their announced intentions were. Was it not the "Great White Father" who unsuspectingly cut off our 1964 proof set supply earlier than usual, and then with the same degree of unpredictability started taking orders for 1964 proof sets again?

And now, Mr. Sinicropi, here is what you can expect if the government's current proposals for solving the coin crisis do become a reality: the coin hobby will continue to flourish just as it always has for centuries, despite two previous proof set suspensions and other governmental interventions. Even if the government minted coins dated 1964 for the next decade, numismatists still will continue to collect, invest, and hoard, as there is an unlimited variety of United States, Canadian, and International coins, medals, tokens, bills, and others of all sizes, shapes, series, and colors to whet the appetite of any numismatist. Investors and collectors of recent-date coins and will simply turn their attention to the earlier-date coins and proof sets and, possibly, expand their interests to other series and international numismatics.

And, of course, this latest governmental fuss and the prospect of Congressional investigation will only fire up the imaginations of the public and turn their interests to one of America's greatest, most profitable, and fastest growing hobbies — numismatics!

As Bill Willoughby stated in THE FORECASTER: "The coin follies of 1964 make most interesting reading. Collectors and investors alike sit back and view this comedy with a great deal of pleasure and amusement, secure in the belief that they are SAFE and the outlook never looked BRIGHTER for future profits.

"The more of this type of publicity the more REACTION of the public will make itself known in the wild scramble to get on the BAND-WAGON and BUY coins BEFORE they go out of style. This is truly a case of 'Fighting Fire with Gasoline'. It simply will not work. Coins as collectors and investors items are here to stay and their present popularity will greatly INCREASE in the future along with fantastic PRICE INCREASES. Today's prices will be BAR-GAINS tomorrow."

Thus, it is our sincere hope that government officials will finally recognize that this so-called "coin craze" will be around for centuries and thus get themselves "squared away" so they can cater to the numismatists with the same efficiency and profit that they have managed to serve the stamp enthusiasts for so many decades.

May we suggest that the best way to enhance your investment in coins is to use the W. H. Foster, Inc. LAYAWAY PLAN! You just pick out your needs and we'll put them in the vault in your name . . . ready to mail. Pay 20% down and the balance in monthly installments (or sooner if you desire!) All Layaway Items are insured and sent prepaid at delivery.

The following are our Layaway Rules:

1. Minimum Layaway amount is $50.00.
2. Add 4% to total order.
3. Send 20% down payment and pay 20% a month.
4. Certain items will be marked "no layaway."
5. Penalty: If payments are not complete, money will be refunded less five per cent of total order.
